Cabinet Office

User research to design and iterate on a service to request clearance.

Background

Context	Transitioning to a new application process A new application process was being implemented, for thousands of applications every month	Currently, this is done manually Before this project, my client was sent spreadsheets with requests, processed manually
---------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

The Ask	Design a new service for the application process The new service had to be designed using the GOV.UK design system and adhere to the GDS service standard
---------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

My approach

This approach follows the design thinking methodology
